As Marie Antoinette famously said, "There is nothing new except... these 15 NYC restaurants that opened during October and are totes worth checking out, especially the one with the kimchi bacon fried rice." Speaking of which...

Park Avenue Autumn

Murray Hill

Filling a massive space that was once the Hurricane Club, Park Avenue Autumn is a restaurant whose decor and menu change seasonally, though hopefully not too much – 'cause right now they're doing In-N-Out-inspired burgers, day-after-Thanksgiving toast, and a cocktail served in a squash.
